Description of Plan

The entire school is studying the same trait, but teaching different lesson plans to different grade levels. This allows the entire school to be on the same trait at the same time. Each year is different for the students, but they are still studying the same traits. The school spends 2 or 3 weeks on the same trait and then moves on to the next.

*Instead of having seniors deliver "life lessons," the entire student body can meet and a teacher/administrator can deliver it.

Description of Plan

9th Grade - Teach first six character traits

10th Grade - Teach second six character traits

11th Grade - Teach third six character traits

12th Grade - You can teach any of the traits

 First year can teach any six, second year can teach any 1-12, third year can teach 1-6, four year will be a repeat or mentoring or project-based.

This is the first year implementing the plan to the whole school. When the freshmen become seniors you can do a mentoring piece for the school, with the seniors mentoring the freshman class. The seniors could also write a textbook on the people in their community.

This would involve the seniors finding a person in the community for each character trait. They would then write that chapter on that person. The goal is to have seniors take on more of a leadership role, i.e. community service, mentoring younger students, providing guest lectures.
