In the foreground, a young woman with brown hair, wearing a blue sweater and a red and white patterned scarf, is smiling and looking towards the camera. Behind her, a young man with dark hair, wearing a white sweater over a green plaid shirt, is looking down at a book. To his right, another young woman with long brown hair, wearing a grey sweater, is also looking down at a book. They are all sitting at a wooden desk. A blue semi-transparent banner is overlaid on the right side of the image, containing the title text. The background shows a window with bright light coming through.

Teenage years are a time of intense change and students really don't yet know who they are as young adults. Exploring the curriculum topics allows our students to discover what is truly important to them as well as helps them to identify where they want to grow and challenge themselves. ~ Diana Penning, Spring Hill High School (SC)

Traditional Approach

This is a comprehensive program designed for use in a classroom setting. Schools will always be able to utilize the traditional approach that includes:

- The curriculum (lead teacher's manual) contains 256 lesson plans delivered by a classroom teacher. The character movie set and passwords for the online lesson plans are included.
- The Role Models textbook serves as the reading component for the students. This book highlights 36 individuals who exemplify the 18 featured traits. Most schools get classroom set(s) for the students to read.
- About half of the schools order the consumable student workbook. It keeps the students organized and eliminates the need to make numerous copies from the curriculum.
- Onsite, zoom and automated training options are offered to make sure your school is successful with this program.

Online Approach

For schools with 1:1 laptop/iPad programs, this approach is interactive, easy to use and includes all the benefits of the traditional approach, without the paper.

- The online approach is user-friendly, interactive and challenges students to embrace technology. For example, students can video themselves carrying out a basic skill in public and accompany their written work with video presentations.
- All lesson plans are included in the online version, including the chapters from the Role Models textbook.
- The online version is less expensive up front, but requires a small per-student fee annually.
- Students will access and complete all lesson plans on their own devices.
- This online program can be easily used in a traditional classroom or for online learners (homeschool, credit recovery or virtual schools).

This class has taught me a lot about using good judgment and using good character. It has shown me what kind of person I can be and what kind of person I should be.
